The Draconid Uprising in Standard Okamese ドラコニッドの蜂起 was an event on the island of Okami in the Okami Islands archipelago in the year 1150. Which confronted the witchers of the School of the Dragon and the witchers of the School of the Wyvern, being the la defeated and hunted to extinction.

Reasons for the conflict

The reasons for this uprising are uncertain, but it is said that the emperor wanted to eliminate the Wyverns, as he saw them as a danger to maintain power and provoked them to rise up in arms (unlike the dragons who are on the government side). Although others say, it actually happened because the Wyverns wanted to kill the dragons and replace them like the slyzards during the Second Draconid Uprising (Although this last seems rather improbable, due to the characteristics that they possessed)

One of the most plausible reasons, although not widely considered because no evidence has ever been found to confirm it, it remains a simple hypothesis, is that the Wyverns were actually hired by a series of warrior clans such as the Kanmu, Koko, Ki and Imube with the intention of creating enough chaos, to subdue the emperor and create a sogunate in which they would be the rulers. Due to the great fiscal pressure the Emperor was putting them under in preparation for the Third Invasion Attempt to Feiwo a few years later.
